Homestead Strikers Scared by Treason Charges.

Those Under Arrest Unable to Give the $10,000 Bail Required.

The Entire Advisory Board to Be Ar rested Without Delay.

ad Quivering With Exciten The Striker's Attorneys Profess to Believe That the Charges Can-not Be Made to Stick.

Telegraph to The Times. PITTSBURGH, Oct. 1 .- | By the Associted Press.] The issuance of warrants against the Homestead strike leaders on charges of treason, at the instance of Chief Justice Paxson, yesterday, caused a decided sensation, not only among the strikers, but also among their sympathizers here and at Homestead. This is the first time a charge of trea-son has been brought in any State for acts arising from a strike or labor troubles. The strikers were ready to laugh at any charge of riot or murder laugh at any charge of riot or murder brought against them by the Car-negie Company; but when the great State of Pennsylvania takes the matter up, it is entirely a dif-erent thing. The informations were lodged after long consultation be-tween all members of the Supreme Court and District Attorney. A novel point in the case is that the Chief Justice will hear the applications for Justice will hear the applications for bail before the cases go to the grand jury, and will call that body before him and deliver a special charge on treason. Should true bills be found an unprecedented thing will occur, Chief Justice Paxson, as ex officio Judge of the Court of Oyer and Terminer, will sit and try the cases.

The attorneys for the strikers declare that the proceeding is a persecution of the defendants and sert the charge of treason cannot be made to fiold.

O'Donnell, Critchlow and Clifford are O'Donnell, Critchlow and Clifford are now in jail, making nine under arrest. Homestead is quivering with excitement. Some talk of taking a band and flag and marching to Pittsburgh in a body, and applying for admission to the jail. Under all is deep-seated anger, which is liable to take almost any unexpected turn.

which is liable to take almost any unexpected turn.

This afternoon an informal discussion was held by Chief-Justice Paxson and the attorneys for both sides. Justice Paxson decided that the accused can give bail of $10.000 each. Up to a late hour none of the defendants now in jail had secured the necessary bonds. Attorney Knox said the reason the cases were begun in the reason the cases were begun in the Supreme Court was because it had always been the practice in this and other countries to begin suits for treason in the highest courts. This was done in view of the gravity of the offense. The highest executive authority was resisted, and it is proper that the highest judicial authority of the State should first take cognizance of the offense.

irst take cognizance of the offense. W. J. Brennen, attorney of the Amalgamated Association, characterized the gamated Association, characterized the arrests as the crowning outrage of the Homestead affair. "Why," said he, "we were just talking about bringing sut against the Carnegie people for treason for bringing an armed force into she community and attempting to usurp the power of the government of the municipality and State."

the municipality and State."

The strikers at Carnegie's city mills and friends of their cause were greatly exercised today over the report of the unexpected movement by the Carnegie firm. The advisory board, it is said, is to be held on charges of conspiracy, treason and as many other bills as can be entered against it. On Monday of Tuesday of next week way. Monday or Tuesday of next week war-rants will be served on members of the board and the arrests will be made immediately, so that the suits may pro-ceed simultaneously with those at Homestead. Superintendent Dillon, of the Thirty-third street mills, acknowl-edged the truth of this statement this afternoon. NO. 139 W. FIFTH ST.

By Telegraph to The Times.

MORRIS PARK, Oct. 1. — [By the Associated Press.] The rich Matron stakes were decided this afternoon, at the opening day, before 15,000 lovers of the race horse. The weather was perfect. A strong wind was blowing down the straight-away and made the light-ning-fast track a record breaking one. Much of importance of the Matros stakes was lost sight of when Dr. Hasbrouck, with 122 pounds up, chopped two full seconds off the five-furlong rec-ord. No one thought him fast enough to lower the 0:59 record originally made by Aides over the same track, and duplicated by himself and others afterward, and when 0:57 was hung up by the official timers, the spectators were amazed and inclined to be skeptical. When Yemen beat off his opponents in the second race of six furlongs, and lowered the record for that distance from 1:1014 to 1:09%, doubters were convinced that it surely was a record breaking track. There were seventeen starters for the Matron stakes. The betting was one-sided. Miss Maude and Sir Francis sided. Miss Maude and Sir Francis, at 2 and 2½ to 1. The others were backed at from 8 to 1 to 100 to 1. The Rebecca Rowett colt headed the bunch half way down the hill and looked a sure winner a sixteenth from the finish. Another Letter from Cleveland. AURORA (Tex.,) Oct. 1.—Dr. J. D. Burch today received a letter from ex-President Cleveland referring to his much talked-of alleged interference much talked-of alleged interference with the factional fight among the Democrats of Texas. Mr. Cleveland says that he has not in any manner or form interfered with the controversy and does not intend to do so. "Wherever there are Democrats earnestly supporting the principles of the Democratic party," said he, "I'm in sympathy with them, but where there are factions I shall take no part in their difficulties." culties.

Industrial Education.

It is a much-discussed problem just what should be taught in the public parents as to what they have in view for their children and how the younglife. As it is, with what we call our to eighty or 100. Dr. Keeley estiprogressive methods, from the time a cation" which is thought requisite for every citizen, but also a fair understanding of many things that a generation ago were rated among the higher branches of education. He has at east an appreciative knowledge of things that were then the masters in various accomplishments. A visit to the upper grammar grades or the High school, where the effect of the system begins to tell upon the pupils, is calculated to make the middle-aged man or woman sigh for youth and a chance to profit by the public school advan-tages of the present day. The graduate of the Los Angeles High school has followed the pleasant paths of the sciences, of history, literature, music and art to a greater extent and far more delightfully than his grandfather could have done at the leading colleges, as they were equipped in his youthful days. So complete is our educational system, that, if the diploma of the High school does not satisfy him, the ambitious youth can step from its portals into the State University. Truly the lines of the youth of this generation are cast in pleasant places, and their opportunities are great.

urged that the boy or girl who gradu-ates from the High school, or the young man or woman who completes the uni versity course stands at the threshold of life empty-handed. The question of existence-the need of gaining a place mong the workers of the world-is be fore them. Notwithstanding our muchvaunted civilization, this problem is far more serious today than it was wenty-five years ago. It is urged from this utilitarian point of view that the pupil who takes the public school course should come out not only with a trained mind, but with trained hands as wellthat he should possess as he steps forth into the activities of life some means of securing a livelihood. It is urged that the development of mind and body should go forward together, keeping the pupil, whether boy or girl, in touch with the practical affairs of life. The advocates of this view ing from the most advanced thinkers of the day. Many progressive cities of the East have adopted a system of manual training to accompany the grammar grades of instruction, and it is found that, when the proper spirit is given to this branch, the pupils make better progress all along the line. They not only achieve considerable dexterity in the use of tools and in useful occupations, but the variation from the humdrum of books and the application of a part of their energies to physical training stimulates their ambition and fits them for greater proficiency in more abstract study.

In Boston the manual training schools have proven very successful as an adjunct of the educational system. In Chicago the Board of Education was literally forced to yield to the public demand for reform in primary grade teaching, and a committee was appointed to revise the whole curriculum for the purpose of introducing technical branches. In Los Angeles technical education has not yet made much headway, but, with the good results achieved at the Whittier school, has set people to thinking. Some people have already propounded the awkward question, why is it that the State first waits for a boy or girl to become incorrigible be-fore it adops the plan of fitting them for the real activities of life? Why should not the good boys and girls be given equal advantages with those who have fallen under the shadow of the law? A quiet influence is at cause of technical education, which comparatively few people are aware The late Dr. Wills left legacy of $75,000, the income of which was placed at the disposal of his family cause of practical education. It was this influence which first established in walked into The Times counting-room our city the free kindergarten the other day and boldly demanded two schools and led to the adopfull pages in the best part of the paper tion of the system in the public for a little "piece" that he said his schools. Now that the advantages of kindergarten training are extended to all children over 5 years of ization of the cooking school, where, for a nominal price, girls might secure instruction in the useful culinary art. Other philanthropic people have now joined with the dispensers of the Wills fund, and a building especially devoted to this purpose is in proboys' Home, where the children of poor people may receive the prac tical training which they so much need. We believe that needle work is to be taught, as well as cooking, and that a day nursery for the benefit of working women with children on their hands will be one of the adjuncts. Before long an effort is to be made to induce the Board of Education to incorporate the cooking and needle-work schools and probably some similar manual training for boys, into the public school system. If Los Angeles does this she will simply place herself in line with the progress of the age in educational matters. The great call is for more practical instruction.

Losing Their Frightful Examples An Eastern exchange observes that the statistics of the Keeley institutes are of the most significant kind. There are now eighty-four branches established in this country for the administering of the Keelev remedy for dipsomania, making with the parent institute at Dwight eighty-five in all. The cerificates of cure each month average between 4000 and 5000. For Septem ber they will be about 4500, and each month the number of cases increases Those institutes which were established schools. At this rate the ground will be taken from beneath the Prohibition party before they know it. If their desire is really to save people from the evil effects of drink more than to found a party for their own advantage, they will give the Keeley institutes all the assistance they can, and throw their political fortune in with the Republican party, where they can do some good.

A PERSON reading the Stockton Mail would conclude that Gen. Daniel E. Sickles was one of those despised Republicans so frequently spoken of in Democratic newspapers, but we beg to assure the Mail and others of its ilk that Gen. Dan is a Democrat from away back-that he was a delegate from the Empire State to the National Democratic Convention; and would add further that it was at that great gathering where the General made his famous remark that Grover Cleveland could never again be elected President of the United States. Gen. Sickles stands by his words and still, metaphorically speaking, swings that crutch of his in air and declares that Grover Cleveland cannot be elected. He will prove himself a true prophet-mark the prediction

Evans and Sontag are becoming too resh. If their alleged note to the Sheriff of Fresno is genuine, it shows that they have become foolhardy and are disposed to take chances which are unnecessary. The first thing they know they will be in the strong grip of the We hope that they will be caught before they make their way to San Francisco if that is their point of destination. In several respects it would be better to have them caught down in the country where they have been depredating and murdering officers. The bill of expense would be less and the subsequent proceedings more interesting.

THERE is a strong disposition manifested by several correspondents to "rush into print" on the subject of mountain peaks round about Mt. Wilson. Let the toadying advocates of new and needless nomenclature rememominious fate of that ambitious person who tried to fasten the preposterous suffix of "loa" to a high mountain.

Ohio Democrats Applaud a Story Describ ing the Way Stevenson Decapitated Republican Postmasters in Days Gone By.

New York, Oct. 1.—[By the Asso-The week politically closes upon a situation congested with possibilities. The foreground of the political field is at present occupied chiefly by the Democratic generals. The Republican forces lie back and watch and wait the movements of their adversaries. The gathering here of the Democratic State and national committeemen, and the presence of Cleveand and Hill, all growing interest in the present Democratic movements here. The arriving of Democratic clubmen for next week's meeting also adds to the spectacle of the Democratic sortie. Cleveland his not yet decided how long he will stay in New York. His stay will be determined in a measure by the progress of the work on his new city residence. In any event he will remain here till Tuesday or Wednesday and attend the convertion of the National Association of Den in the city and State and a large num ber of prominent politicians engaged in the work of the national campaign.

The political conditions in all parts of the country have been laid before Cleveland by the Democratic National Campaign Committee, and he is said to be well pleased with the outlook, especially in this State and the Northwestern States, which Democrats hope to carry. He told Don M. Dickinson vesterday that he considered Wisconsin Michigan, Minnesota and Illinois de-batable ground, and expressed great pleasure with the work of the Chicago branch headquarters. Cleveland has so far refused to interfere with the work of the Syracuse convention men. His friends say it is his intention to keep friends say it is his intention to keep his hands off local politics and leave the municipal fight to the men engaged in it. He is confident the State will go Democratic, whether there is a third local ticket or not. The talk about his being averse to a ticket in opposition to Tammany is pure conjecture, based on the statements of Chairman Harrity and Dickinson, who are supposed to and Dickinson, who are supposed to ex-press Cleveland's sentiments.

This may or may not mean a combination with the county Democrats and Voorhees Democrats. The question will be decided during the coming week. The general opinion today is, that if Cleveland pursues a policy of non-interference Tammany will have a fight on its hands this year. Croker says he care whether there is a third ticket or not so far as Tammany is concerned, but he is apprehensive that a fight among Democrats might result in loss of the Legislature and a United States Senator. The State Committee is apparently taking no interest in local affairs. Its work is confined to the ffairs. Its work is confined to the state above Harlem River. ROSEBURG (Or.,) Oct. 1 .- [By the Associated Press.] About 500 people assembled this afternoon to hear Gov. Pennoyer, who delivered an address on the political issues of the present cam The Governor's address was paign. listened to attentively, but evoked very little enthusiasm. He roundly de-nounced the course of both Democratic and Republican parties, saying in part: same measures I have heretofore advo-cated upon all occasions. I shall defend the doctrine, as heretofore, that the bulk of the doctrine, as heretofore, that the bulk of Federal taxation should be levied upon the wealth rather than on the labor and industries of the country; that there should be free and equal coinage of both gold and sliver money; that both should be of full legal tender and that the paper money, required by business interests, should be issued direct by the Government rather than by private banking associations, which, like gold and silver, should be legal tender.

It is true, however, that in advocating these measures now I find myself outside of the political organization to which I these measures now I find myself outside of the political organization to which I formerly belonged. But this is neither my fault nor my misfortune. It is the fault, if not the misfortune, of the Democratic party, which, having abandoned its principles, now ought by right to abandon its name. A great political party has at last proved recreant to all its traditions, and, forswearing its featly to the cause of the people, has knelt in blind, idolatrous devotion at the shrine of a man whose sole distinguishing characteristic is his stubborn subserviency to the demands of monometalists. Careful investigation, however, dissubserviency to the demands of monometalists. Careful investigation, however, discloses the fact that this devotion is really not to him, as he has neither the personal qualities nor the inhelicetual endowments nor the political sagacity to win homage. The real reason of his potency is the fact that his candidacy is demanded by the money power. The Chicago convention turned its back upon all traditions and made a most profound salaam to the great joss set up by the devotees of monometalism and bank rag morey.

The nomination of Harrison and Cleveland, of like principles and policy upon ism and bank rag movey.

The nomination of Harrison and Cleveland, of like principles and policy upon leading questions, by the opposing political parties is quite an anomaly in the political world, but, fortunately for the country, a new party has entered the political arena in antagonism to both the old parties. Instead of raising the bulk of the national revenue by tariff taxation, which falls with unjust and unequal weight upon the labor and industries of the country, it would transfer the bulk of the burden by an income tax to the wealth of the Nation, where it justly belongs The only just standard of taxation is the one which compels a man to pay according to his wealth. Cleveland's administration is admitted.

lowa. Speaking of the reasons for Cleveland's reflection he said:

Cleveland's administration is admitted even by Republicans to have been an honest one. Bonds were paid as fast as they matured:—Nearly—100,000,000—acrs.of. Indiverse to the people. He turned over the Government with almost $100,000,000 in the treasury in money saved by an economical-administration of affairs. The question then was what should be done with the surplus. Now it is where shall the money be obtained for the expenses of the Government. This year the estimated deficit will be $52,000,000, and the treasury is actually confronted with bankruptcy. The cause of this is lavish, even unnecessary, appropriations by the billion-doilar Congress. The present House is made to appear extravagant because in addition to the necessary expenditures it is forced to pay an item of $72,000,000 left by the billion-doilar House, and has had added to it $32,000,000 by the Republican Senate. While the McKiniey tariff cuts off $50,000,000 of the national revenue, there is one instance where Republicans removed a tariff, namely, that on sugars. They had by that same bill taken $15,000,000 a year for fifteen years from the people to pay the sugar growers' bounty, a clear case of making one class rich at the expense of the country.

Stevenson declared that tariff does

Stevenson declared that tariff doe not regulate wages; they are regulated by the law of supply and demand. Wages are higher here because lively American methods of labor are more productive than those of listless Euro pean workmen. Dealing with the 'Force bill," he declared:

It's enactment would put into the field on election day an army of 800,000 federal office-holders, to be paid from the treasury of the Government.

Ex-Gov. Campbell made a humorou speech, in which he spoke of Steven son's record as the creator of Demo son's record as the creator or Demo-cratic postmasters, relating an incident where the present candidate for Vice-President had, as a favor to him (Camp-bell) decapitated sixty-five Republican postmasters in two minutes. He re-garded a man of that sort as a vigorous and true Democrat. When the oheers following this statement had subsided following this statement had subsided Stevenson arose and said he considered that the highest compliment he had received in his whole life.

An Encyclical Letter to Be Read in Catholic Churches Today.

New York, Oct. 1.—[By the Associated Press.] The Times tomorrow

-will say: The recent encyclical of Pope Leo XIII on The recent encyclical of Pope Leo XIII on the rosary, or beads, is to be read in every Catholic Church throughout the world today. It is one of the most important letters issued by the present pontiff. After commending the recitation of this prayer during the month of October, the holy father says:

"The many and various methods of degravity by which the wickedness of the age pravity by which the wickedness of the age treacherously endeavors to weaken and de-stroy in human souls the Christian faith and observance of the divine law which nourishes the faith and renders it fruitful, and observance of the divine law which, are already too well known, and now the field of the Lord is almost everywhere a wilderness as if through the breath of a horrid pestilence, through ignorance of faith and through error and vice. The thought of this is made the more bitter by the fact that those who can and ought to do so place no limits and impose no penalties on such arrogant wickedness and evil; nay, rather the spirit by which this state of things is created very often appears to be promoted by their indolence. Hence it is, when such is the case, that we have to deplore the establishment of schools for the training of the mind and the study of the arts in which the name of God is not mentioned. We have to deplore the license, daily growing bolder, by means of publications of raising every sort of cry offensive to God and the church; nor is it less to be deplored that among many Catholics there is remission of duty and apathy, which, if not equivalent to open abandoment of faith, tend to terminate in it, since the practices of their lives are nowise consonent with the faith. To him who considers this confusion and destruction of the higher interests, it will not certified the second of the light of the reference of the procession of the procession and destruction of the higher interests, it will not certified the second of the procession and destruction of the higher interests, it will not certified the second of the procession and the courtency of the higher interests, it will not certified the second of the second of the procession and the courtency of the higher interests, it will not certified the second of the procession and the courtency of the higher interests, it will not certified the second of the second of the procession and the certified the second of the procession and the certified the second of the procession and the certified the second of the second nowise consonent with the faith. To him who considers this confusion and destruction of the higher interests, it will not certainly be a source of wonder that nations are groaning beneath the weight of divine punishment and kept in 'a state of alarm through fear of greater calamities."

His Holiness then tells of the origin of this devotion and the many spiritual advantages that may be derived by those who recite the prayers with fervor and faith.

erican Corn Finding Favor in the Fatherland-German Army Offi. cers to Ride from Berlin to Vienna-Flashes.

By Telegraph to The Times.

Bealin, Oct. 1.—[Copyright, 1892, by the New York Associated Press.]

The Reichstag opens October 22, and there will be a period of gravest danger of a ministerial crisis. The government has determined not to delay the presentation of the budget which includes sentation of the budget, which includes credits arising on account on army bills. Bismarck's friends announce that he will appear as a hostile critic of the government's proposals. In view of the severe party struggle which is ex-pected, the leaders of the differ-ent groups are trying to range themselves. The government will rely on a coalition of the Conservatives and Centrists. The Catholic electors are making a somersault and returning to the Conservatives. The Center party will doubtless bargain with the Emperor and Chancellor for some advantage for the Catbolic Church in exchange for its support. A peculiar feature of the position is that the Vatican, with its leanings toward France, does not desire an increase in the military strength of Germany, but finds it does not desire an increase in the military strength of Germany, but finds it impossible to interfere or advise the Centrists. The Catholic leaders, knowing the situation to be touchy, are not consulting the Vatican.

to a tax on beer. Herr Miguel, the Finance Minister, has originated a proposal to force Bavaria into line by placing an extra tax on Bavarian beer consumed in Prussia. His colleagues in the Prussian ministry hesitate to approve the suggestion. Such a measure would be certain to cause intense irritation in Bavaria. Whatever means the governcertain to cause intense irritation in Bavaria. Whatever means the government may take to raise money, the Freisinnige party and National Liberals are bound to oppose them. Some independent Centrists and Conservatives are joining them, and these will constitute a temporary coalition that will render the government majority insecure:

How the American Product Finds Favor in Germany.

Hampung, Oct. 1.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] C. J. Murphy, special representative in Europe of the Aricultural Department of the United States. has written a letter to the Consul now here stating that Charles Scholvin will open a new Indian corn mill this month. and will grind only American corn. He has the latest American machinery. This will make two corn milis in Hamburg for the exclusive grinding of American corn. The first mill erected had to run night and day, and then could not fill all orders. Col. Murphy expects to sell to every part of the country. He sell to every part of the country. He will commence by giving away samples of meal in large quantities. A large bakery will soon be opened in Berlin in which nothing will be produced except the products of corn. The report of the government commission to examine into the uses of corn, soon to be issued, he has been assured is highly favorable.

Forty Year Water Bonds.

Los Angeles, Oct. 1.—[To the Editor of the Times.] The City Council is now considering the important question of issuing bonds for the construction of a system of city water works. The necessity for some action being taken so as to furnish our city with an abundant supply of good water is apparent to all. But the zeal of some members of the Council to rush this matter may lead to indiscretions. At the coming election in November we shall have an opportunity of voting upon an amendment to our State Constitution, which, if carried, will enable our city to issue bonds for forty year serial bonds, which are not looked upon with much favor by bond buyers. It is more than probable, if our city fathers will go a little slow and issue the proposed water bonds under the forty-year plan, that the interest can be fixed at 4 per cent., and that the bonds will sell even then at a good premium. Our present outstanding bonds, and the outfall sewer bonds yet to be placed on the market, are all that our people-should be called upon to pay during the next twenty years, and any subsequent issue of bonds should be for forty years straight, and at a low interest. Please place the matter before the public and invite an expression of opinion, so that the Council can carry out the wish of the people in this important matter. Three or four months' delay is nothing compared with the possible saving to the Lux payers by issuing straight forty-year bonds, and giving posterity an opportunity to do a litter of itself.

LATER—This afternoon President Ives, of the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern, issued the following statement:

The strike was declared off today by Chief Ramsay. Reports have been telegraphed broadcast by him and local correspondents claiming a great victory for the order. The facts are that no concessions whatever were granted and no men will be taken back, except such as we have vacancies for, and have given us no trouble during the striks. Not more than ten can find places. No agreement was signed by any officers of the company. The order stands simply where it stood thirty days ago, except that a majority of its members on this line are out of situations.

For a long time I have been suffering with bladder and kidney troubles. No doctoring or medicines seeined to do me good I consulted the best physicians and surgeons in Los Angeies city. They gave me morphine and drugs, but no relief could I obtain. A ter suffering great pain and having my passage almost entirely elogged I, fourteen days ago, began using Dr. Woh's medicines. Today I am perfectly well. Ido consider Dr. Woh the most successful physician in Southern California. C. A. STEELE. 216 and 318 S. Main st. Los Angeles, Cal. Cotober 13, 1891.

Fresh News Concerning the Coming Y. M. C. A. Convention.

Death of an Estimable Woman-Vario Items of Local Interest-Personal Notes and

The local branch of the Y.M.C.A. has issued a neat invitation, addressed to the State associations and other friends interested in the work to attend the twelfth an-nual State convention, which convenes here

The following brief extracts will furnish some additional news bearing on this im-portant gathering: 'Extensive prepara-tions are being made by the local commit-tee for the entertainment of this convention, and we are delighted in the anticipation of your visit and stay with us during the days of this important gathering in the interest of the young men of our city and State. Pasadena is a city of homes. These will be open to welcome you, and everything will be done to make your stay pleasant and roughly be a received by the control of the c ant and profi.able; and to us exceedingly helpful. Our beautiful streets and avenues with their magnificent walks and drives; our flower gardens and orchards, and a climate unsurpassed in any country in the world, will be at your command. In order that the sessions of the convention may not be interfered with our citizens have arranged for a drive in their private conveyances on Wednesday afternoon. Carriages will meet the Southern California Railway train, leaving Los Angeles at 1:25. We earnestly hope that every delegate will plan to be present at this time, as in connection with this a pleasant surprise, characteristic of Pasadena, is being planned by the Ladies' Central Chummittee. To insure a sufficiently early arrival we suggest a careful examination of the hour of arrival of train or boat. Elaborate preparations are in progress for the welcome exercises following the collation at 6 o'clock on the same day. We trust every possible effort will be made by all delegates to arrive in ample time and to remain throughout the entire convention." ant and profitable; and to us exceedingly helpful. Our beautiful streets and avenues

The Ladies' Central Committee of the Y. The Ladies' Central Committee of the Y. M.C.A. held a large and enthusiastic meeting Friday in the reading-room. Ladies representing the following churches were present and volunteered their assistance in entertaining the delegates: Methodist, Presbyterian, Congregational, Baptist, Episcopal, Christian, Friends, North Pasadena Congregational. The collation and welcome on Wednesday evening will be an elaborate affair, in which the young people's societies of the various churches will unite in a special greeting to the delegates. The Los Angeles Art Association is a recent venture which promises to give a new impetus to the wings of Pegasus and lift the art standard of Southern California. It is the ideal of the association to establish a permanent art gallery, to which a few a permanent art gallery, to which a few gems have already been donated as a nueleus by generous art lovers. The meetings have been entertaining and instructive, and at their next gathering, next Tuesday, October 4, at 7:30 p.m., at the Woman's Industrial Exchange Hall, on Broadway, all are lavited who are interested in its success. There will be an exceptional programme, with an article on ancient sculpture by Mrs. Taylor of this city, and readings by Miss Helen Mar Bennett.

GAYETY AT THE SPALDING.

Over 100 people assembled at the Spalding Friday night on the occasion of the parlor social given under the auspices of the Ladies' League of the Universalist Church.

Briefly summed up, the affair was an unbiased success. The parlors and dining hall were lavishly decorated with flowers and vines, the arrangement being as artistic as it was elaborate. The dining hall was set apart to the exclusive use of the dancers, while refreshments of a most appetizing description were served in several side suites of rooms. Those who did not take to the light fantastic were regaled with other amusements, so that all present had a good time. Over $50 was cleared for the church fund.

norse nesh, and endears him more than ever to the hearts of the people of Orange county.

The great confusion Friday when the two horses came in on the last heat drowned the sound of Santa Ana's brass band stationed on top of the grandstand. As the horses thundered down the stretch toward the wire, the leader of the band, from his lofty perch, saw that McKinney was defeated and presuming that his name might appropriately be changed, led his musicians in "Down Went McGinty." When Silkwood was approaching the judges' stand on the way back from the stretch the tune was changed to "My Conquering Hero, See Him Come," and as he passed on to the stable the clear, clarion notes of "My Country, Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty," rang out above the excited cheers of thousands of admiring men, women and children.

A literary and musical programme was given last evening in the pavilion. The attendance was not so large as it was on previous evenings, but a great deal of interest was manifested.

In Ceina, they will wonder at its steam engine; and the six thousand electric lights, which are now being introduced into the holiest of Chinese sanctuaries, cannot, but turn their eyes to oar civilization. It will not be long ere a malerial advancement will be made in the science of medicine, which has for so many centuries remained a blot upon their civilization.

The missionaries are doing much to dispel the mysticism and riverent awe which the Chinaman holds for the concoctions of snakes, toads, lizards, etc., prepared by the native doctors. They recommend standard remedies which have long been favorably known in America and Europe, such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a remedy for all cases of blood-taints or humors, which has had years of uninterrupted success in the United States, and numbers its cures by the tens of thousands. This is a point gained for the future welfare of the Drogomen Empire.

Woman, and Her Rights in the Land of the Czar.

How a Russian Noble Got $50,000 With His American Bride.

Wife Beating Dying Out-The Peas ant Girls of Russia.

The Queer Mohammetan Maidens of th Volga-The Daughter-in-law and Her Horrible Honeymoon-Story of Alexander II.

dence of The Times Moscow, Sept. 15, 1892.—The women of Russia!

How shall I describe them? They are like no other women on the face of the globe, and still among their millions they have types of almost every race of woman known to man. In St. Petersburg you see the fair-haired, blue-eyed, freckled-face maiden from Finland walking the streets side by side with the red-haired girls who have been imported thither from the Caucasus and the Tartars, the Cossacks and the Armenians mixed together with the other different types of the eighty provinces of this vast empire. Along the Volga you will meet different costumes and different races of woman at every landing place, and the girls of Little Russia wear different clothes and have different manners from those of Great Russia and South Russia. Here in Moscow there are a vast number of gipsies, and Russia has the harem of the Mohammetan, the polyandry of the Himalayas and all the varied combinations of civilized love the varied combinations of civilized love and marriage. The pure Russians look upon marriage much as we do, and of late years the relations of the sexes among the upper classes have been almost as free as they are with us. The Russian lady of today has her friends among the young men of her acquaintance, and though as rarely goes about without a chaperone she receives her callers in her own home and her ideal marriage is one of love. marriage is one of love.

Of late years the laws of marriage have been radically changed, and now females are forbidden to wed save between the ages of sixteen and sixty. Men cannot marry until they are over eighteen nor after they are eighty, and divorces are less common in Russia than they are with us. The church of Russia objects to more than one marry. than they are with us. The church of Russia objects to more than one marriage. It has its penances for second and third marriages, and a man who marries a fourth time is excluded from the holy communion. Few marriages are made in the upper classes without the consent of the parents, and in most cases the woman is expected to bring a cases the woman is expected to bring a very respectable dot with her. I know of an American girl who recently mar-ried a Russian noble. The noble came to America, and the wedding was cele-brated in one of our large cities. Be-fore it took place, however, the groom called upon the bride's father and asked about the settlement. "What settle-ment?" said the old man, who had considerable wealth, but who had not hitherto had a daughter marry a European baron.

"The settlement upon my wife," was the reply. "Don't you intend to give her something at the time she is mar-

"I had not thought of it," replied the old man. "And how the ought to have?"

"Well," said the Russian noble with a hem and a haw, "it seems to me that the ought to have at least $50,000. It would not be a bad idea if the sum was $100,000."

I don't know whether the old man I don't know whether to bjected or not, but as the story is told here he raised the $50,000 and put the securities for it in the bank to his daughter's order before the marriage took place.

The Russian woman now has more The Russian woman now has more rights after marriage than she ever had before. Two hundred years ago she was little more than a slave and the husband's horse whip always hung over the bed of the married pair, and it was used freely. Women were then seldom seen upon the streets, and Peter the Great had a way of kicking them when he met them here or in St. Petersburg and telling them that their place we he met them here or in St. Petersburg and telling them that their place was home and they ought to be in it. The wife beating of today is almost altogether confined to the peasants, and the Countess Tolstoi told me that even the peasants were improving in the reatment of their women. The peasant women have in fact many rights of which the women of the other parts of which the women of the other parts of the world know nothing.

In the communal system by which the rillages of Russia are governed the women stand on an equal footing with the men as regards the distribution of property, and they have their share of the property of the village according to property, and they have their share of the property of the village according to their share in the work. According to Russian law the legitimate wives and daughters of the man get only one-fourteenth of the family inheritance, but by the law of the peasants the right of inheritance comes from work alone, and there is no distinction between wives and concubines. The husband inherits the wife's property only they have lived together. daughters of the man get only onefourteenth of the family inheritance, but by the law of the peasants the right of inheritance comes from work alone, and there is no distinction between wives and concubines. The husband inberits the wife's property only when they have lived together more than ten years, and otherwise it goes back to her parents. The peasant women take part in the village assemblies, and widyears who are the heads of families have the right to vote. There are cases in which the whole village assembly is made up of women, and this assembly divides the land of the village as woman may be mayor of the village if she is elected as such.

The peasant women of Russia are all

The peasant women of Russia are all hard workers. You see them everywhere in the fields, mowing and reaping, spading up the ground and raking the hay and doing, in fact, everything that man can do. They work in gangs sight. They spend their time in dress-of twenty or thirty, and each gang of women is usually directed by a man, who acts as overseer and who keeps them at their work. They go into the fields almost as soon as they are old enough to walk and they work until they are gray haired. Hard labor soon takes the beauty out of them, and the older women have faces like leather, full of wrinkles and furrowed with tare. The younger girls are plump, brighteyed and, in some cases, pretty. I have seen few beautiful women among them, but there are few very ugly ones. The type of the Russian peasant's face is that of the best type of a kind mother, and the most of the faces show strength of character and many of them are what you would call fine looking. Marriages among the peasants are made both on the grounds of convenience and love. The sexes associate so closely together in their work and in the yill government. love. The sexes associate so closely together in their work and in the villages that they have a chance to get thoroughly acquainted with one another, and a good, strong woman just doubles the working force of the man who marries her, without very materially increasing his expenses. Neither sex among the peasants spends much time upon dress. The women wear nothing but handkerchiefs upon their heads while working in the field and their feet are generally bare. In the summer such shoes as they use are made of bark, woven into the form of slippers like basket work, and in winter love. The sexes associate so closely to slippers like basket work, and in winter they put great heavy boots of felt upon their feet. Neither sex wears stock their feet. Neither sex wears stockings and they wrap a cotton rag around the foot and up the ankles to about the middle of the calf, tying it round and short and they tuck them up when they are working. They wear little or no

The chemise-like dress is fastened over the bust and under the arms and is held by braces over the shoulders. These costumes vary in different parts of the country. In Little Russia the dresses are often one mass of embroidery, and the women wear a very pretty embroidered crown over their heads, and the dresses come high about the neck. pretty embroidered crown over their heads, and the dresses come high about the neck. The nurses everywhere have costumes of their own, and the Finnish girls, who act as the wet nurses for the babies of St. Petersburg, always have crowns upon their heads and you can tell a nurse as far as you can see her. The peasant woman knows nothing of the corset and she has no idea of fashion. The people wear the same costumes corset and she has no idea of fashion. The people wear the same costumes from year to year, and the peasant dress of today is the same as that of generations ago. Isaw in Kazan Mohammetan women who wore sacks over their heads with the sleeves hanging dewn on the shoulders and with only a crack at the front through which they could see as they went along the street, and the dress of these women was almost exactly like that of the women of Corea. I saw other women there whose heads and breasts were covered with gold coins just like those of the women whom you see in the Himalaya Mountains of India, on the border of Thibet, and these Tartar women have the same bronze faces and high cheekbones that are found in the girls of the ones that are found in the girls of the Himalaya Mountains. They are of Mongolian origin and they look more like Chinese than Americans. The coins which they wear are real coins, and they generally represent the dower which the woman brings into the family when she is married. cents, and in a very few parts of the empire they are paid even more than this. They are as a rule better workers than the men and they no not seem to appreciate how badly off they are. I hear them singing in the fields as I travel throughout the country, and they do not seem to think their life a hard one. They seem to think they were made for work, and married or single, their life is one of toil almost from birth until death.

In none of the Russian churches is a woman permitted to go into the inner sanctuary, and if one is going out hunting it is considered bad luck to meet a woman, and he had better turn back.

The daughters of these merchants are woman, and he had better turn back. The daughters of these merchants are often very religious and very superstitious. Their marriages are usually made by matchmakers, and the merchant is expected to give a good dowry with his daughter when she enters matrimony. Long engagements are not rimony. Long engagements are not common and they seldom last more than common and they seldom last more than "two or three months. Among the peasants the girls usually weave and embroider their own wedding gowns, and they begin to get ready for marriage as soon as they are old enough to sew. Among the merchents after a girl is engaged her friends come in and help her sew upon her wedding outfit, and she has sewing circles and quilting bees in preparation for the marriage. These sewing circles are held during the afterhas sewing circles and quitting bees in preparation for the marriage. These sewing circles are held during the after-noon and after tea the bridegroom and a few of his bachelor friends drop in, and the girls and the future bride have a dance with them during the evening. Russian marriages generally take Russian marriages generally take place at night and the ceremony is performed by the priest. The bride-groom meets the bride at the church and the pair carry lighted tapers with them to the altar. The taper that burns out first is supposed to indicate the death of its holder. After the ceremony the bridal party walk three times around the part of the church where the cross is, and after the benediction they kiss the holy pictures of the church and they have the church and they have the three times aduring the the holy pictures of the church and they kiss each other three times during the ceremony. When the whole service is over the bridegroom leads the bride to his house, where the peasants greet him and where they are blessed with bread and salt. There is a wedding supper after this, and during it the bride and bridegroom go off to bed. Every Russian man wears boots, and it used to be the custom that the bride Speaking of a woman's work among the peasants, the hardest field work is done by the women and they get lower wages than the men. Their hours are from 4 in the morning to 7 or 8 o'clock in the evening and 15 cents a day is big wages. If they receive food their wages are even less than this, and in some parts of Russia girls get 8 cents a day and board themselves, In other regions their wages rise as high as 20

The Russian bride, however, tas her thinkers are many free thinkers among the leading women The Russian bride, however, has her happiest time just at the marriage. The peasant's wife has, perhaps, as hard a lot as any woman in the world, and this is especially so during the first years of her married life. She is the slave of her husband, and, what is worse, she is usually the slave of her mother-in-law, and she is treated as badly as the widow is in India. Here, where the families of three generations where the families of three generations often live together in a hut of one or two rooms, the young bride is not welcomed, and the husband can do little to protect her. The oldest man of the family is boss of the household. and the Russian author, Tikhomirov, gives a number of songs which illus rate how the bride is received into the

She has three or four governesses and she learns her French, German and English as a child. Many of the ladies of the higher classes here have been educated in the colleges of Europe, and, until within a few years ago, a woman could get a good college education in Russia. All of the female colleges but one, however, have been abolished, it the government thinks they are the hot beds of nihilism, and they were closed by the imperial order about five years ago. In 1873 a woman's medical college was opened at order about five years ago. In 1873 a woman's medical college was opened at:
St. Petersburg and it had about 400 students; and during the ten years of its existence it graduated 600 women doctors. It was closed, however, and though there are some women who still practice medicine in Russia, the bulk of them are permitted to do their work only as assistants, and they are tolerated only as an experiment. When the present Czar came to the throne he the present Czar came to the throne he the present Czar came to the throne he prohibited the practice of medicine by women, but they have been allowed to practice, though their work is in reality contrary to the law. A large number of women are school teachers here in Russia, and there are 5000 school mistresses in the empire. Women do a great deal of business in the stores.

y formed into line in the morning gray, Shoulder to shoulder went Co. A. Out of the shadow into the sun.

Marching along to the rendezvous, By grassy meadows the roads ran through, By springing confinelds and orchards gay, Forward, forward went Co. X. And the pink and white of the apple trees, Falling fast on the fitful breeze. Scattered its dewy, scepted spray Straight In the face of Co. A.

A breath like a sigh ran through the ranks

Treading those odorous blossom ban For the orchard hillsides far away, The Northern hillsides of Co. A. Forward, march!---and the dream sped; Out of the pine wood straight ahead Clattered a troop of the Southern gray Face to face with Co. A. Forth with a flash in the Southern sun A hundred sabres leaped like one. Sudden drum-beat and bugle play Sounded the charge for Co. A.

Straightway set for a sign of truce Whitely a handkerchief fluttered loose, As front of the steel of the Southern gray Galloped the captain of Co. A.

Forth from the ranks of his halted men, While the wild burrahs rang out again, The Southern leader spurred his way To meet the captain of Co. A.

Out of the arms that held her safe He took with a smile the little walf. A grip of the hand 'twixt blue and gray, And back rode the captain of Co. A. Up there, in the distant cottage door

Nothing left—save the bloody stain Darkening the orchard's rosy rain. Dead the chief of the Southern gray, And dead the captain of Co. A.

Why should there be so little resemblance between a drama when rehearsed and when acted! The stage is in semi-darkness, the actors mumble their parts, only speaking the cues distinctly, carpenters, gas men and other employes are constantly passing backward and forward, and the unfortunate author, even if he have stage experience, is forward, and the unfortunate author, even if he have stage experience, is utterly unable to judge of the effect that will be produced when the curtain rises in earnest. How it is that any sort of order at all ever comes out of such confusion no one seems to know; but even if there is no actual hitch perceptible to the audience, it does not follow that the ideas of the author have been carried out as he intended, and all he can do is out as he intended, and all he can do is to think himself lucky that matters are no worse.

On the other hand it may be said that the stage manager is the author's best friend, and that, were it not for his cutting and slashing, insisting on dialogue being extended in order to get time for scenic effects, and, in a word, vulgar-

This, to a certain extent, militates against the gay appearance of the house. Gentlemen are expected to appear in evening costume at the Opera. The Renaissance has been making the gagement in the troupe about to visit the seaside places of resort with the "Noces de Zeannette" or some other operette.

Amid the general noise and hubbub no one takes any notice of the orchestra leader, who has composed the music for an opera bouffe which will cause public opinion to place on his shoulders the manute of Jacques Offenbach. His ambition is doomed to the same disappointment as that of his next door neighbor, the prompter, who spends his time copying out the manuscript of a piece he has written to suit the tastes of the age. The manuscripts of composer and author will find their way to the butterman's, after having propped up the leg of the rickety table in some managerial sanctum. They would do better to follow the example of the old comedian, who, after having his med of success, has been reduced to take the part of supernumerary. I had a long and interesting talk yesterday with Frank A. Heywood, editor and publisher of Southern Progress, at Norfolk, Va. In speaking of the political situation in the Old Dominion Mr.

Heywood said: The Northern Republicans, as well as those who are supposed to represent the Republican party in the South, seem the kepublican party in the South, seem to fail to take into consideration that until within the last four years there was no particular reason why the Southerner should evote the Republican ticket. Until within the last four years with the southerner trace many party agricultural. our interests were purely agricultural, and we had no manufactories of any kind. If we wanted to buy a coat we naturally wanted to get it at the cheap naturally wanted to get it at the cheap-est place, consequently we were all ad-vocates of free trade. But since the adoption of the McKinley law we have erected 6454 manufactories. We have not any rich manufacturers in that section, for the Northern manufactures who are making money have no reason who are making money have no reason to come to us. Our manufacturers are all men who were unable to stand the great competition in the Northern States, or they were managers, foremen or superintendents who wished to enter upon enterprises of their own and came South, where the chances were greatest. Those 6464 manufacturing enterprises have given employment to thousands of people who ever worked before, and these people thoroughly understand that their in-terests are entirely dependent upon the protective tariff. For instance, we terests are entirely dependent upon the protective tariff. For instance, we have 150 mills sawing North Carolina pine. The mills employ 15,000 men. In the meantime Peck's Democratic brethren have become so incensed against him because he told the truth, that they have trumped up a silly charge against him and had him actually arrested. Verily, it is a dangerous thing for a Democrat to be honest! What a spectacle it is! Peck merely to the best of his ability gave the exact figures of wage and production increase in New York State. Being a Democratic appointee he had been expected to lie about them—to twist them so that they would favor free trade. Failing to do this, he was actually hauled up in a police court as if he had jumped a board bill or robbed the till of a Tammany saloon.

SPANISH PIONEERS.

THE REBELLION OF THE SHINING SNAKE.

By Charles F. Lummis

IV. Contributed to The Times. *There were three reasons why the Spanish pioneers had so much harder a lime in America than we Saxons did. The first was because they were first When they came, the Americans were not only unknown but unguessed. The like men groping in the dark amid danger and suffering. By the time we came the New World was very fairly understood, and there were maps and geographies and histories, and had been for a hundred years. It was a great moral advantage-we knew where we were and what was beyond Second-The nature of their wilder ness was incomparably more forbidding. We never had to undergo any physical hardship to be compared for a moment with their sufferings in the desert-for the desert itself and alone is far more terrible to man than were our wildest forests full of savage beasts and men. The forests may contain dangers, but the desert is a danger—and a more fearful one than Indians. And as much worse as deserts were than our north ern woods, so much more deadly were the tropical forests than the desert.

Third—The Indians whom the Spaniards encountered were far more numerous, more organized, more skillful and more dangerous than any or all tribes with whom our forefathers ever came in contact. How petty all the Indian wars we ever had, all put together, are by the side of the one re-bellion of Tupac Amaru. And that was only one of the host of Indian wars by which the Spaniards have been beset for two centuries longer than we have

Why, the war between the pioneers and the Araucan Indians lasted for 200 and the Araucan indians lasted for 200 years; and after three centuries and a half the Yaquis, safe in their fastnesses, are not even yet subdued; and all over two thirds of the whole hemisphere the Spanish colonists have had for centuries to have Indian wave there they have Indian wave there they have Indian wave Indian wav ries to bear Indian wars worse than ours with the Apaches, the Modocs or the Sioux.

The rebellion of Tupac Amaru was by far the greatest and most disastrous Indian war that ever took place in either America. It was in Bolivia in the years 1780 to 1784, and almost shook the foundation of Spanish empire in South America. It called to the front some remarkable Indian leaders and brought about not only the greatest victory that Indians ever won, but a military maneuver which is entirely unique. No other city was ever so strangely bombarded as was Sorata, and none more effectively, and yet the aboriginal Napoleon who besieged it had neither cannons nor any other appropriate the strangely believed. had neither cannons nor any other a pliances deemed necessary for bombard

The cause of the rebellion was curious one. It was not of quite such strange triviality as that which had already almost caused a fevolt, but of already almost caused a fevolt, but of somewhat the same nature. As I have said, the policy of Spain toward the Indians was always humane, progressive and kind. The design was always to teach and uplift these savages until they should be fitted for citizenship; and the voluminous and noble laws of Spain provided at all points for this worthy object. Of course these good laws were sometimes violated and somelaws were sometimes violated and s times evaded by bad officials; but the times evaded by bad officials; but they were always punished as promptly as possible. Still, justice was a long way off; and to reach the offenders was a matter of time. Some died before they could be punished; and others managed to do a deal of harm before the day of reckoning came.

The law of the second repartimiento was devised by the crown to protect the Indians from being robbed by un-scrupulous storekeepers. It was a welldesigned measure, but in some cases ill-executed by individuals. The correjidor or corrector—a sort of a judge—sometimes misused the power that had been given him for a humane purpose to further his own ends. One correjidor, for instance, received, through somebody's mistake in making up the goods sent to him for distribution. goods sent to him for distribution, a of this unexpected and useless stock of goods, he gave orders that every Indian in his jurisdiction should wear glasses! That came very near causing a rebel-lion; but the trouble was fortunately averted by wiser measures.

But it was a correjidor who did start the great Bolivian insurrection, and b his foolish injustice, in a somewhat similar repartimiento. He was the correjidor of Chuquisaca, in Bolivia; and having received an immense stock of goods, he ordered the Indians to buy his wares to the amount of $340,000.

his wares to the amount of $340,000. It was precisely what the mother country did to our colonies in the stampact and similar measures, and was no more to be endured. The Indians rose at once, and being still too uncivilized to go the wise way about righting their wrongs—an appeal to the Spanish crown would have settled it—they resorted to the wild, old court of war. Their leader in this natural but un-

Their leader in this natural but unnecessary and deplorable appeal to arms was Tupac Amaru, the Shining Snake. The origin of this redoubtable Indian is not absolutely certain, but of his surprising ability there is no doubt. According to a common report he was a descendant of the Incas—that remarka descendant of the Incas—that remark-able tribe of organized warriors who had almost achieved an independent civilization in Peru before a white man ever saw America. His baptismal name was José Gabriel Cunturcanqui, Tupac Amaru being his Indian name. His father is said to have been the Cacioner Tupprasura and his methan an Cacique Tungasuca, and his mother an

No matter how great a crisis may arrive in the affairs of a nation it seems to breed the man to meet it and in this crisis Tupac-Amaru was the man of the hour. revolt, in which the Indians followed their cruel passions and devastated a whole province, the Spanish Viceroy sent Inspector dell Valle to the scene of insurrection with a force of 2000 soldiers. But he was utterly unable to one with the insurrection. Then the soldiers. But he was utterly unable to cope with the insurgents. Then the Viceroy dispatched José de Areche a special commissary with special powers to the seat of trouble with an army. Tupac Amaru had captured and destroyed Chucuito, and sweeping resistless down his blood-stained way was marching upon Cuzo, the second city in marching upon Cuzco, the second city in his claims. The victorious insurgents were close to Cuzco, the Indian leader and his family were camped on the hill Pichaco, only five miles distant from the city. Arche, nothing daunted, answered calmly to Tupac Amaru's conditions: "I was not sent here to treat with rebels, but to put down rebellion. You must lay down your arms before we can talk of conditions."

Tupac Amaru refused to yield, and on the 16th of April, 1781, he and his family were surprised and captured in their camp by Areche's dragoons. The leader of the insurgents was tried and found guilty of high treason, and in May was executed with his family—in one of the dreadful fashions which all the most civilized governments of that day thought necessary. His military career was a short but startling one, and he died like the Indian stoic he was.

The death of Tupac Amaru did not long leave the Indian stoich to all adder.

The death of Tupac Amaru did not long leave the Indians without a leader. long leave the Indians without a leader. His son, Andres Tupac Amaru, and his brother, Casimiro, sprang to the head of the rebeis; and with them was associated that obscure but remarkable Indian genius variously known as Tupac Catari or Nica Catari. Andres and Casimiro shared his victories; but the startling inspiration which led to the bloodiest Indian massacre in history seems to have been born in the brain of Pushing on with merciless vigor, leaving a broad trail of blood and devastation, the rebels at last laid siege to the large and important city of Sorata There the Spanish troops and colonists made a desperate stand; and, as the city was very well fortified for those days, they seemed safe. Soráta was days, they seemed safe. Soráta was surrounded by a strong, high adobe wall, itself utterly impregnable to Indians or to light firearms, and defended by artillery, of which the besiegers had none. But Catari was equal to the emergency—and as brilliantly so as Curus the Great, whose ruse at Babylon is fus the Great, whose ruse at Babylon is famous for all time.

How break down that strong wall, with neither cannon nor battering rams at his command? The Spaniards could not see how, and felt secure. But Catallian and the secure of the secu tari knew. Adobe walls are hardly pregnable to cannon. At worst, they merely crumble to an earthwork which no mi crumble to an earthwork which no missile can break, and which is as easily defended as the former wall itself. So if Catari had had cannon—even modern cannon—they would have done him little good. But he had invented the strangest bombardment that ever wrecked a city-a bombardment by water!

Sorata stood in the level of a pretty, bowl-like valley, with mountains all about. Catari quietly set his followers to digging treaches and throwing up bars of earth. Then he had a huge wall built all around the outer wall of Sorata, and at a safe distance from it. And and at a safe distance from it. And then he turned all the streams from the ountains into his ditches and began to flood the space between the walls!

Slowly but surely the water rose, and surely it did its work. An adobe wall that will resist cannon must yield to the slow, treacherous soaking of a puddle that can reach it. The bottom of the wall drank and drank the water like wall drank and drank the water like a great sponge, until it was too soft and wet longer to support the weight above it, and the undermined structure collapsed and fell headlong. The ruin was complete, and the Indian rebels, rushing ever the fallen fortifications, made massacre of the whole city. In that awful day 22,000 citizens of Sorata were wiped out by their savage foes. So many Saxons have never been killed by Indidante in the whole United States. That may give you an idea of the greater dangers of the Spanish pioneers and Sorata though the ish pioneers, and Sorata, though worst of their losses was only one o hundreds.

CITY DEMOCRATS IN SECRET SESSION. * There was a motley gathering of local Democrats as sembled in Tammany Hall last evening at 8 o'clock, when the city Democratic Central Committee was called to order. The entire absence of anything that might be mistaken for a shade of parliamentary usage would have put to shame a backwoods county literary "sassiety" for original and un precedented awkwardness. To Destroy Tree Borers A writer in the St. Louis Journal of Agriculture tells how he destroyed borers in a variety of ways, but after trying several methods, sizes up the matter as follows: I know of no better way of putting a stop to their depredaway or putting a stop to their depreta-tions than by using unadulterated kero-sene quite freely wherever the castings of the larvæ are protruding through the bark. As soon as the kerosene comes in contact with the castings it is ab-sorbed and carried by capillary attrac-tion until it permetes the whole burtion until it permeates the wh row and comes in contact with larvæ, and then soon this noted little enant is lifeless.

In using kerosene there is no use cut-ting, digging into, or in any way mu-tilating the tree to find the larvæ. The fluid kerosene will find it, and this is enough for practical purposes, and then nature steps in with her healing art and mends the damage done to the art and mends the damage done to the tree. The amount of kerosene used for the purpose is so small that it endangers in uo way the health of the tree. A person can visit and inspect many trees in a single hour, and if necessary apply the spout of a can and flow a small amount of kerosene in various places.

More traffic from Chicago to San Francisco starts east than west, says the Chicago Herald. Even before the present demoralized rates were begun clipper ship competition it was cheaper to ship via New York and the ocean than directly west via all-rall lines. Since the clipper ship competition ocean rates have tumbled to a point a point where the element of time and possible damage to high-class goods are the only reasons which impel merchants to pat-ronize the all-rail routes. From Chicago to San Francisco by rail rates range from $3.90 per 100 pounds firstclass to $1.10 class E. The rail rate to New York, plus the ocean rate from New York to San Francisco, is in all cases materially lower than it is about 20 per cent. lower. while on the lower classes it is 50 per cent. lower. This difference has been in effect practically since the passage of the Interstate Commerce Act. But as it takes two or three months longer to ship via New York it made no marked difference in routing the traffic until San Francisco began its boycott on the Southern Pacific several months ago. Since that time more than 75 per cent. of the tonnage between Chicago and San Francisco has been ordered to go or come via New York. Rates have been so reduced by clipper ships that almost all heavy items of freight, such as canned goods, can be shipped from San Francisco via Cape Horn and New York to Chicago for less than $1 per 100 pounds. Western lines refuse to take any traffic at less than the $1 rate, sage of the Interstate Commerce Act. 100 pounds. [The Rural New Yorker.]

We began crossing tomatoes three years ago in a mechanical way, with little hope that anything of value would come out of the work. But the results were startlingly interesting. Last year crossing was continued on a larger scale and the results are this year even more instructive. It is needless to say that crossing during the present season has been continued on a still larger scale and with greater care in the parentage selection, there being 200 crossbred plants to choose among. We venture to express the opinion that perfection in tomato culture has by no fection in tomato culture has by no means been reached, and that the "coming" varities will be the outcome of careful crossing through several gen-

Astonishing as it May Seem,
We were compelled to make the second batch of N. O. molasses chewing peppermints for our Saturday trade. We found at about 6 p.m. they were running low, so ditched in and made another batch—all hands then wrapped them, otherwise we would not have had enough to carry us through. Mind you we make them of the best material and sell them to you at New York prices, 30 cents per pound—both delicious and healthful. Keystone Ice Cream Co. T. A. Gardner, manager. No. 112 N. Spring street.

The Eagle has been watching the circus with glee, and has come to the conclusion that "the greatest show on earth" is not the girl who rides a loping horse in a bathing suit covered with spangles; the man who tosses cannon balls in the air and catches them on spangies; the man who tosses cannon the brave muscles of his good right arm; the giraffe with a beautiful neck for long, cool summer drinks; the elephant that goes 'round and 'round, nor the band that begins to play.

No, indeed, these are not the greatest show, by long odds, when the circus comes to town. It is the people who come in from the country to see it—the girl wearing seven different colors and many freckles, who hangs onto John's rough hand and chews gum; the fat matron with the six young ones on foot and a babe in arms, who trail after the old man leading the two next youngest, who occasionally has to yank the aforesaid urchins out of the way of a hack or a horsecar onto the straight and narrow sidewalk that leadeth to the big tent where the lion roars and the behemoth sweats blood.

These are not the real features of the hemoth sweats blood.

These are not the real features of the big show, but the genuine simon-pure aggregation of Brobdignagian greatness is the ten-year-old boy who comes to town and sees the circus for the first

And stupendous as this boy is, it is doubtful if he is quite as much of an unrivaled attraction as was the boy of that age thirty or forty years ago, when the country was younger and slower by the difference of a great many broken records than it is now, and when circuses came around only once in a long time, but when they did come it is well remembered the whole country for remembered the whole country for miles around tipped up and stood on end for weeks and weeks after the "show" had loosened the last tent pin and guy rope and hied itself to other wonder spots.

boy on a farm. The boy is a staid and sober man now, with broad acres and stacks of gilt-edged mortgages that other people have to do the floor-walkother people have to do the hoor-waikning act about; but forty years ago he was a country lad who was so fortunate as to live in a neighborhood that the circus proposed to visit.

The first rumble of the great show was head one morning when the now was heard one morning when the popu-lace got out of bed to find the barns covered with gaudy and wonderful posters, describing with picture and flamboyant letter-press the great things that would be exhibited and performed two weeks

At once a family council was held—a weighty and deliberate council—to settle the momentous question whether that boy should go to the circus or stay at home and sucker corn. Anybody who at home and sucker corn. Anybody who has suckered corn knows just what this means, for it is a job which has driven more boys from the farm into the wiles of city life than all the other occupations known to that free and untrameled life where suckers grow.

The family congress, in committee of the whole, finally agreed that the boy should go. Right here Time got lead on his wings and absolutely refused to fiy. The days were one great, long drag—and the nights were full of spangled dreams, in which the blood-sweating behemoth and the boa constrictor had the center of the spectacle.

But finally, after wons of ages to that boy, the morning of the circus arrived, and the first streak of dawn exploited by a roosters' reville, found him up and moving. He built the fire in the kitchen stove and had the teakettle whooping steam into the atmosphere hours before any one else in the him forms. any one else in the big farm-house was astir; he fed the stock, he split wood, he hoed in the garden, and found the very last hen egg in the barn in his everlasting effort to keep up such a move that he would not become a raving maniac of unrest while waiting for those people to get up for breakfast. those people to get up for breakfast. And for fear that there might be a mis-cue in the arrangements he saddled a plow horse and hitched him in front a plow horse and—hitched him in front of the door that he might fly when the proper hour had arrived.

That forenoon finally passed, but if you have ever been a boy waiting for a circus you have some faint idea, perhaps, how long it took it to get by. How the hours dragged—how slowly the sun made his way up the eastern slope of blue sky into the zenith—how hard it was to find things to do that should fill up the apparently interminable gap between breakfast and dinner. But everything must have an end, and when dinner was on the table that boy was have an end," and when dinner was on the table that boy was there ready for it, fidgeting through "grace" and shoveling in food immediately afterward like a fireman coaling his boilers on an ocean steamer. Long ere the rest of the family had been "helped" that boy had bolted his meal, and with a whoop of delight was aboard that saddled steed and racing against time across the three miles of against time across the three miles of distance to the little town where the circus was to "show."

The town was located in a little valley. and at a point a mile distant from it that boy reached the hill which over-looked the hamlet, revealing to his astonished eyes not only the first circus but the first tent he had ever seen. With what awe he haited his flying horse and gazed upon the wondrous spectacle! How his little heart beat under that homesum jacket as the under that homespun jacket as the stretch of white canvas, surmounted by nnder that homespun jacket as the stretch of white canvas, surmounted by the fiaunting flags, revealed to him the "really truly fact" that not only the day of the circus had come, but that the circus was really here!

The capture of armies by a general is not a parching to the sense of exultation felt by that boy!

Long he sits in silence and drinks in a scene that neither time, nor distance, nor future trouble, nor, joy, nor wealth, nor heaped-up honors can efface from his recollection. Forever afterward he recalls the scents that swam about him that summer noon; how a meadow lark bubbled over with a barst of song that was liquid music; how the sun shone from a turquoise sky, across which drifted patches of fleecy cloud-like miniature circus tents of the upper air; how softly the breezes blew across the rippling fields of wheat and shook out the banners of the tasseled corn!

Ah! yes indeed it was a great hour for that boy, and when he finally advanced, located his foaming steed in a village stable and reached that tent life had given up its biggest and brightest-treasure of sensation, which never can be duplicated.

Of course that boy is the only human animal about the tent, for it is an hour or more ere the circus begins, so the lad takes in the surroundings.

or more ere the circus begins, so the lad takes in the surroundings.

He learns the art of staking and guying a circus tent to the last minute detail; he goes out where the wonderful horses are and demonstrates to his satisfaction that they are flesh and blood animals and not spectral steeds from another planet; he sees the great gaudy band wagon with its gilded dragons and its dome of giltter, and finally he comes across a little wagon that is a deep dark-red mystery. But finally a man comes, and opens the end of the vehicle, whereupon he learns that this is the place to buy tickets.

In his survey he has found a flap in the tent, which convinces him that this is the entrance, so he walks up to the mysterious red wagon, buys his bit of paste-board and is the first lone human being to enter that great billowing expanse of dingy cloth.

Alone in that big space, with the serried seats ranged about him, who can picture with a feeble pencil the thoughts of that boy? The Eagle will not attempt it. He climbs upon a seat and surveys the great inclosure, then, hoping for a better view, he climbs down and goes around further and further, from one seat to another, until he makes the entire circle of the amphitheater, pausing from his final flight at the very door where the gaudy riders and the wonderful horses make their grand entrance.

Then the crowd begins drifting in, at grand entrance.

Then the crowd begins drifting in, at Then the crowd begins drifting in, at first by two and threes, then in groups, and a little later on in swarms, until the whole interior is clattering with the noise of the seating multitude as they race across the shifty boards for coigns of values.

race across the shifty boards for coigns of vantage.

That boy is taking it all in, you may be sure. He is watching every move in the panorama. Not a face escapes him and not one detail, from the center pole with its encircling lamps to the last back seat against the big tent's walls, but is captured and fixed in his memory.

But something has gone on directly while he has been eyeing everything in front and to his right and .eft, the in front and to his right and left, the band has furtively crept in and taken up its location, and while he is lost in the maze of movement that is going on, there comes a crash that makes him nearly leap from his seat, for, mind you, now, that boy never before has seen or heard a brass band, and if he is startled to the point of the and if he is startled to the point of tep-pling off his narrow perch of pine board, one may excuse him for the inadvert-

Then comes in the grand cavalcadethe knights with their tossing plumes and their coats of velvet; the ladies with the long riding habits, and the beautiful steeds that shine like satin.

The scene shifts—the cavalcade makes way for the flying men and women on horseback, who vault through hoops, and leap across the banners, who turn somersaults as the galloping steeds circle around and 'round while the band crashes out its strident tones; the peant how cries his ware and the the peanut boy cries his ware and the lemonade man invites to buy the thin lemonade man invites to buy the thin but enticing draught.

At last the show is over. That boy takes the rested steed from the stable and flies to the fireside, and to this very day he can tell you every act of that wonderful 'performance just as he told it with shining eyes and a flushed cheek to the folks who staid at home on the farm that sunny day in which he first saw a circus, full forty years ago.

THE NEW DANGING ACADEMY.

The Most Elegant institution of the Kind Los Angeles Has Ever Had. It is pleasant to note success that has been so clearly and so well merited as that of Mr. Henry J. Kramer, who for three years past has taught dancing and deportment so acceptably in this city. The new academy, to be open for pupils October 8. is a model in every particular. It hardly seems possible that a single improvemant ucould be suggested. The entranceathatic reception-room, and ladles' and redifference's dressing-rooms are all of good size and beautifully furnished. The dancing hall is forty-five by sixty feet, with an eighteen-foot ceiling. It has eleven windows in the sides and end, eleven windows in the sides and end, all "outside," and a number of large ventilators in the ceiling, so there need be no question about healthful ventilation. The stairway from the front is broad and of easy rise, and leads nowhere but to the academy, which will be a satisfaction to those using it. The be a satisfaction to those using it. The rooms in front of the reception and dressing-rooms are to be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Kramer as living apartments, and this fact of itself will be one that parents will heartily approve of for obvious reasons. In fact, Mr. Kramer's academy has always had, and will undoubtedly maintain, a high reputa-mer's academy has always had, and will undoubtedly maintain, a high reputation as a school for dancing and deportment where children may be sent, or others attend, without fear of objectionable influences or surroundings. It is strictly a school, and promiscous socials are never, under any circum stances, allowed in it.

Mr. Kramer has recently had conferred upon him the high honor of an election to a membership in the American Society of Professors of Dancing, of New York. This is the swell association of America, and the further distinction is his of being the only member of the same west of Chicago. It differs from the other association, the National, in being more exclusive. It National, in being more exclusive. National, in being more exclusive. It costs five times as much to belong to it, and none are admitted but teachers of the very highest grade and untarnished personal character. The "American" passes upon all new figures and dances, and its members have the benefit of and its members have the benefit of advance information long before other teachers get it. The great advantage this is to a school is not easily estimated.

FUNISHMENT OF THE WICKED.

The Bible says that Jesus came to save sinners. Did you ever stop and think how many are saved, according to the popular idea of Christendom?

'All of the following are lost: The Moh edans, numbering 125,000,000; the followers of Confucius, 500,000,000; Hindoos, 120,000,009; aboriginal tribes and pagan, 250,000,000, and some go so far as to include the Jews, and also doubt whether the Catholics can come in with those that may be saved! Then, out of the Christians on the face of the earth only those that believe on Jesus and repent are saved—say, possibly, 10 per cent., or 40,000,000, which would be about 2% per cent of all the recola litting.

I think every fair-minded person will say that my estimate is liberal enough when they consider that our own city is not estimated to have over 19,000 Christian men-and women in it, or not to exceed one-sixth of the population.

If this estimate is correct, then 2% percent of the whole world is a large proportent.

cent. of the whole world is a large propor-tion, but to be on the safe side, call it 5 per cent. Then, according to this Jesus loses 95 per cent. of those He came to save. It is believed by many that this ninety-five per cent. will be punished throughout eter-nity. Not very long ago I attended a religi-nity. Not very long ago I attended a religious gathering, which was addressed by a number of ministers, who spoke upon the punishment of the sinner, and each believed firmly that the wicked were punished throughout eternity. The last to speak went further than the others to show how awful the punishment would be. He said: "Suppose you were to take a grain of sand into the air and drop it; then, a million years hence, took another grain, and so on until all the sand was gone; then did the same with each blade of grass; and after these immense periods of time had passed eternity would have but just commenced. The wicked would be all this time in torment, and the saved would be in heaven enjoying peace and happiness beyond language to express."

joying peace and happiness beyond language to express."

On my way home I passed some ladies and heard one of them say: "I could not be happy in heaven if I thought a friend I had known on earth was tortured in this way."

Having heard other ministers express themselves on this point of eternal punishment I am convinced that it is believed by the majority of Christians. Make Satan out as bad as you know how and you cannot make him worse than they claim the Almighty will be in His treament of failen man, for he surely could do no more than to keep him in torment throughout eternity.

The Bible plainly and clearly teaches that all souls are saved. First, because God is more merciful than we are, and, second, because man is accountable only to a limited cause man is accountable only to a limited extent. To make this point more plain I re-fer to some facts or ideas expressed before. "The spirit sinued before man received a body, and was then cast out of heaven.

for his return. He was given a body during this time of trial so should He be in stead of the good, and the blood became innoculated.

Sentence of death (of the body) was pronounced upon mankind "lest they live always in the evil state." To whatever extent Adam may have been guilty, it is agreed by all Christians that the whole human family were injured in some way by Adam's transgression, and it is generally supposen that the race was affected morally. Esdras states it very plainly: 'Oh, thou Adam, what hast thou done? For though it was thou that sinned, thou art not fallen alone, but we all that come of thee;'

thou that sinned, thou art not fallen alone, but we all that come of thee;"

If it is true that through some sin of Adam's we are under any moral or physical aliment would a just God punish us eternally, or would he be more lenient for this nally, or would not be more lement for this very reason?

Efternal punishment is utterly inconsistent with the teachings of Jesus: entirely out of accordance with what we are taught in the Bible to believe of the Almighty. This doctrine causes so much sorrow and makes so many infidels that I cannot pass it by without trying to show the fasisty of it.

makes so many infidels that I cannot pass it by without trying to show the fasisty of it. For proof of the mercy of God toward fallen man we willlook to the Word:

A comparison of Gen. 17-10 to 13 with Joshua 5-5: of Exod. 40-15, with Heb. 7-14; and Levit. 16-13, with Psalm. 16-17; will clearly show the word "everlasting" has often been used to denote a limited time by God. It is recorded in Ezek. 16-25, that Sodom and her daughters shall return to their former estate.

The following passages will clearly prove that God will have mercy:
"All souls are m.ne." Ezek. 184. "Pharaoh shall see them, and shall be comforted over all his multitude, even Pharaon and all his army slain by the sword, saith the Lord." Ezek. 32-31, "He retaineth not his anger forever because he deligheth in mercy." Micah 7-18. "This is indeed the Christ, the him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness." Rom. 48. "Who is it that justifieth the ungodly, that a be-lief on him is 'counted as righteousness? When we were yet without strength Christ died for the ungodly. For, if we were ene-mies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son; much more, being recon-ciled, we shall be saved by His life." Rom.

ciled, we shall be saved by His life." Rom. 5-6-10.
"Therefore, we both labor and suffer reproach because we trust in the living God, who is the savior of all men, especially of those that believe." Ist Tim. 4-10. "Who, then, shall dare to say that he is the savior of the believer only." "Thou hast ascended on high; thou hast led captivity captive; thou has received gifts for men; yea, for the rebellious also, that the Lord God might dwell among them." Paalms 68-18. "Every creature which is in heaven and on the earth and under the earth, and such as are in the sea and all that are in them, heard are in the sea and all that are in them, heard Isaying: 'Blessing and honor and glory and power be unto him that sitteth upon the and power oe unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the lamb forever and ever." Rev. 5:13. "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain." Rev. 2:14. Where, then, is eternal punish-ment? "Whoever therefore shall break one of the least commandments and shall teach Rev. 21-4. Where, then, is eternal punishment? "Whoever therefore shall break one of the least commandments and shall teach men so, he shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but whoever shall do and teach them the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven." Matt. 5-19.

To do and teach others to do wrong surely fills the heasure of wickedness, yet such an one is admitted to the kingdom of heaven.

"This is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Savior; who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth. For there is one God and one Mediator between God and men, the Man. Christ Jesus, who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time." I Tim. 2-3-6.

"God sent not his son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved." John 3-17.

"Though hand join in hand the wicked shall not be unpunished." Prov. 11-21.

"Yet doth He devise means that His banished be not expelled from him." 2 Sam. 14-16.

"He is the propitiation for our sins, and ished be not expelled from him." 2 Sam.

14-14.

"He is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." 1 John 22.

"We have seen and do testify that the Father sent the Son to be the. Savior of the world." 1 John 4-14.

"The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." Luke 19-10

"We see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honor; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man." Heb. 2-9.

"The Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of the sail." Isaiah 58-6.

"Having made peace through the blood of be things on earth, or things in heaven."

Colos. 1-20.
"It is written: As I live, saith the Lord.
every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God." Rom. N-II.
"But I say unto you which hear, love your enemies, do good to them which hate you.
" Be ye therefore merciful, as your Father also is mereiful." Luke 7-27-30.
There are many other passages equally strong. Eternal punishment metes out the same punishment to the thief, the liar and the murderer. Is this either justice or consistency?

the murderer. Is this either justice or consistency?

Does any one doubt that any or all of Jesus' prayers or requests of the Almighty will be answered? If His prayers are, then those that crucified Him must receive forgiveness, for when He was crucified He said:

"Father, forgive them: for they know not what they do."

I do not believe that there is a Christian mother on the face of the earth who has an erring child that really believes that it is lost for all eternity. Like Jesus, she prays:

"Father, forgive, for he could not understand Thy love and kinduess." She would stand Thy love and kindness." She would ask Jesus to intercede for the many good deeds he had done, and think you her good deeds he had done, and think you had prayer-would not be answered?

Are the wicked, then, to go unpunished? By no means; but the punishment must be in accordance with justice, even if not merciful; but God, being more merciful than man, will punish each less than he deserves. All who are regarded as heathen will be All who are regarded as heathen will be punished according to the light they have, and if they repent they must save the soul at the first resurrection. To many but little knowledge is given, so but little will be required of then

The same faith that saved the Jews in the past; will do so now. They believed on the Almighty and repented. The gentiles that believe on Jesus and repent, last moment, will rise at the first resurrec-tion and will-inherit mansions in heaven according to the way they lived upon earth. The one who repented in his earlier years and served God to the best of his ability and served does to the best of its ability will-certainly be higher in power and favor than the one who lived an evil life all his days and repented, perhaps, through fear instead of love.

Those who do not repent when brought to judgment at the beginning of the millennium will receive sentence of banishment, and during that time will be punished according to the evil they did on earth, allowance ing to the evil they did on earth, allowance being made for the knowledge they had and at the end of the millennium they will be forgiven.

It says that "the wicked fixed not again until the end of the thousand years." They will then receive mansions also, according until the end of the thousand years." They will then receive mansions also, according as they lived on earth.

To make absolute justice, all will sleep in peace until the general resurrection. Were it not so those that died several thousand years ago would be punished more, and would be receiving punishment before the judgment.

Even in this present time a judge, in passing sentence, takes into account mitigating circumstances; and will the Supreme Judge do less? Will He not make some allowance for our fall through Adam? But what rebate of punishment is there if it extends through eternity, and, as before stated, the worst and the lesser sinner receive the same?

If the above plan does not mete out perfect justice it is because I have overlooked some points, or forgotten some of the details, as these locas are only extracts taken from an inspired volume.

If it does give justice to each and every one it differs from the teachings of men, as I never knew of one that said he knew or could imagine a plan that would make perfect justice between God, man and satan; for strange as it may seem, satan has some rights.

I do not pretend to give any more than the for strange as it may seem, satan has some rights.

I do not pretend to give any more than the main idea as shown in the Bible when understood aright; there are many points which cannot be touched upon in a short article. Those that are interested must search out the hidden truths for themselves, as the full knowledge comes only in this way.

DANGEROUS RESULTS

May Follow Neglected Gatarrhal Trouble.

Earache, Deafness, Headache Dyspepsia and Chronic Bowel Trouble, as well as Bronchitis, Nervous Prostration and Asthma, are in the wake of this insidious Disease.

TREATMENT This Week yet at $1. per Month. Medicines Free.

Those who are suffering from Catarrh or its kindred allments, and who are neglecting the duty of taking proper scientific medical treatment in the belief that they will get over the disease with no other assistance than nature provides, or deem it unnecessary to place themselves in the hands of a physician should remember that Catarrh is a treacherous, insidious and powerful disease. It is no less dangerous while it slumbers than while it is awake and active. The longer it is neglected the more malignant it becomes, and more likely to break forth at the first irritation and impair one or more of the senses or attack the vital parts of the system—in its course involve the chest, Those who are suffering from Catarrh senses or attack the vital parts of the system—in its course involve the chest, throat and lungs causing chronic cough, bronchitls and asthma, the ears causing the most intense, agonizing earache and headache extending to the stomach, causing indigestion, dyspepsia, dysentry, etc., finally weakening the whole general system till by depleted blood and inanition due to lack of the stomach and bowels to perform their normal functions of digestion and assimilation; nervous prostration and assimilation; nervous prostration

While Catarrh baffies the best efforts of many of the best physicians, do not expect to get well without assistance. Now is the time to take treatment. Do not delay. The astonishing results at Golden West Medical Institute are brought about by the only true method of treating Catarrh—that is by inhalation and proper kinds of medicines adapted to the requirements of each individual case as understood by experienced specialists. No patent medicine, no nostrums, no specific, no quackery. Every patient undergoes a critical examination, and his case is carefully studied. All medicines are fresh vegetable preparations, made in the institute laboratory.

Treatment for a Catarrh for a limited time at $1 to $5 per month, according to the condition of the patient and stage of the disease.

SUSAN SUNSHINE. COOKING OF ALBUMINOUS FOODS. Laws That Govern Oysters, Eggs and Beefsteaks. Contributed to The Times.

Put into a test tube some white of ar egg and place the tube in a dish of warm water. Heat the water gradually over a gas flame or alcohol lamp. When the temperature reaches 134 degrees Fahrenheit it will be seen that little white threads have begun to appear continue the heating to 160 degrees. when the whole mass becomes white and firm. Now remove a part from the tube and test its consistency; it will be found to be stender, soft and jelly-like. Replace the tube in the dish of water and raise the heat to 200°. Then take out a fittle more and test again; if will be found heat to 200°. Then take out a fittle more and test again; it will be found hard, close grained and somewhat tough; continue the heating, when it will be seen that the tenacity increases with the rise of temperature, until at 212° F., the boiling point of water, it is a firm, compact solid. When heated to about 350° it becomes so tenacious that it is used as a valuable cement for marble.

These experiments illustrate a very These experiments illustrate a very important point in cooking albuminous foods; they show that the proper temperature for albumen is that at which it is thoroughly coagulated but not hardened—about 160° F.

Most kinds of meat, milk, eggs, oysters and fish, when cooked with reference to their albumen alone we find.

omelets, is of much importance, for albumen which is hard, compact and tenacious, is very difficult of digestion; the gastric juice cannot easily penetrate it, sometimes it is not digested at all. That which is properly done, cooked in such a way that it is tender and falls apart easily, is one of the most valuable forms of food, especially for the sick—which should always be prepared in such a manner as to require the least possible force in digestion. Those who are ill cannot afford to waste energy; whether they are obliged to do so in the management of their food depends very much upon the person who prepares it. ALBUMEN IN MEAT.

Advantage is often taken in cooking of the fact that albumen hardens or exposure to certain degrees of heat to form protecting layers over pieces of broiling steak, roast meats, etc.

If a piece of meat is placed to cook in cold water it is evident, since albumen is soluble in cold water, that some of it will be wasted. If the same piece of it will be wasted. If the sams piece is plunged into boiling water, the albumen, in its outer surface, will be immediately hardened and form a sheath over the whole, which will keep in the juices and the very important flavors.

ALBUMEN IN BROILING STEAK.

A steak if salted, cut thin and broiled lowly, will be hard, dry and lacking in flavor; but if cut thick-at least an inch and a half, better two inchesbroiled for the first minute over very hot coals, and then slowly that the heat may have time to penetrate to the cen-ter and raise the whole to a tempera-ture sufficiently high to cook it (about 160°F.) without charring the outside, you will have a dish both wholesome and savory. The reason for having the steak thick The reason for having the steak thick is this: The proportional amount of surface that is exposed to the fire is much smaller than in a thin piece, consequently the loss of juice by evaporation-is much less, and as the flavors go largely with the juice, of course the loss of them is less. That flavors are contained in the liquid of beef one has only to remember the delicious tasts. only to remember the delicious taste of broiled beef juice. The reason for putting steak close to the coals at first (it cannot possibly burn if turned frequently enough) is to immediately plug up the openings by hardening an outer sheath of albumen all over it. This shell of albumen will prevent the juices from evaporation. Now comes the least understood sten in the process-that the steak should be in the process—that the steak should be finished in moderate heat. We wish now to soften the fibers inside this hard shell; to really cook the meat in its own juice, and also to coagulate the albumen and to raise the steak to the center to at least Talse the steak to the center to at least 160° of heat but not beyond it. The process is something like that of cooking an egg; slow, that the heat may have time to penetrate to the center. It requires close attention and practice to do this successfully, because of the difficulty of judging of the heat of a fire.

Thunderstorm in the Mountains

There was evidently a heavy thunderstorm in the mountains to the southeast last evening, judging from the brilliant pyrotecnic display in the way of sheet lightning, which presented a brillians spectacle from the city. Many persons thought the lightning was the reflection from the search lights on the cruisers from the search-lights on the cruisers in the harbor at San Diego, and quite a number of people were on the hills to witness the exhibition.

Messrs. Mason & Moon have recently Most kinds of meat, milk, eggs, oysters and fish, when cooked with reference to their albumen alone, we find to be, also, done in the best possible manner with reference to their other ingredients. For instance, if you cook an oyster, thinking only of its albuminous juice, and endeavor to raise the temperature through all of its substance to, at, or near 160°F, and not higher you will find it most satisfactery as to flavor, consistency and digestibility.

The same is true of eggs done in all ways and of dishes made with eggs, such as custards, creams and puddings. With the knowledge that albumen coagulates at a temperature 52° below that of boiling water, one can appreciate the necessity of cooking eggs in water that is not boiling, and a little experiment like the above will impressit upon the mind as no amount of mere explanation can possibly do. This cooking of eggs, whether they be poached, cooked in the shell, or in opened up at No. 310 South Main street, and are handling the hydraulic thin as birds' claws; his hair was white as snow, but his eyes were black and piercing, and they glared at you as if he could see through and through you. Some mothers, I am sorry to say, had a habit of frightening their children into being good, for they would say, "Now, if you are not obedient and do not do as mother tells you, old Pabby will, like as not, get you;" then the children were very quick to run and do as they were bidden.

One day two little girls had been very naughty and had disobeyed their mother many times. But in the afternoon their many times. But in the alternoon their naughty temper had passed and they were sweet and smiling as little girls could well be. But their mother had gone out for a call, and they were having a make-believe tea party on the lawn. "Yes, if you please," was the answer, for these little girls had been very carefully trained by their wise mother, and they were like the children we read of,

MEMORIES.

I look out of my window
And see the mountains blue,
The orchards and the meadows,
And flowers, wet with dew:
The valley lies before me
With homes, all dotted o'er,
And igain in memory
I hear the sourse of vore And again in memory
I hear the songs of yore
That my mother used to sing
As near her side I sat.
And the sweet strains bring to me
A yearning desolate.

As, musing thus, I know
That childhood's days are flown,
And echoes of my mother's songs
No longer are my own,
For here I sit in silence
Stilling my heart's dull pain,
While evening shadows gather O'er mountain, hill and plain.

I long, I weep for home For mother's love and care,
To fling my arms around her neck
And press her brow so fair!
To whisper words of tenderness,
Of pentience and grief.
Alas: Five only memories. Alas! I've only memories To give my heart relief.

The above sweet little poem is from the pen of one of the young girls at the State school at Whittler. It is full of a tender pathos and yearning that goes right to the heart. Little girl, you may make your future what you will, so let sweet hope be yours, and may your future be fairer than the days that your memory holds.

When he set foot upon the shores of this new continent, the old past of lethargy and superstition died, and a new morning of advancement and past of lethargy and superstition died, and a new morning of advancement and of freedom dawned whose noon day splendor we are now sharing. It was as if out of the sea a new world was born, a world awaiting the marvels of civilization, a soil ready to give birth to freedom. It was a heritage worthy of Liberty, where were cradled the hones of the race. hopes of the race.

The nineteenth century has, so far as regards its reformatory methods of dealing with the young, begun to act upon the principle that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." It has also absorbed the idea for practical experiment, that kindness is better than harshness, and that a spirit of generous sympathy for the wayward generous sympathy for the wayward will be a much greater help in the effort to redeem him than are harsh measures, upled with the evidences of suspicio coupled with the evidences of suspicion and distrust.

I am glad that the superintendent of the Reform school at Whittier is trying this modern experiment of kindness, and that the boys and girls in that institution are not being treated like, so many criminals, and I expect that from these wards of the State a good many noble men and women will take their places on the world's platform by and by, whom harsh and unsympathetic treatment would have never redeemed. The heart is very hard indeed that isn't touched by kindness, and let a boy or girl feel that those in authority over them trust them and shey will shrink them trust them and hey will shrink from betraying that trust.

The world needs to learn a good many lessons yet in charity. Human nature is pretty much alike wherever you find it, and I do not believe that. generally speaking, the boys and girls in our reform institutions are naturally any worse than thousands of their brothers are outside. But they are viscond starts outside. worse than thousands of their ordners and sisters outside. But they are victims of circumstances and of unfortunate environment, and they need our help, our pity and charity. Kindness will unlock the door to many a heart which could never be opened by the rusty keys of suspicion and harshness.

to know that philanthropy is not going to loosen its hold upon these boys and girls just so soon as they are discharged from the State school, but that a "Whit-from the State school, but that a "Whittier League" has been organized for their protection after they shall have left the protecting walls of the institution. The preamble reads as follows:

Realizing that the boys and girls who are discharged from the Whittier State school must of necessity return to surroundings and associations calculated to undo, rather than promote, any reformation which may have been begun, unless the work of the have been oegun, unless the work of the State be supplemented by care and assist-ance which shall follow them to their homes and find for them useful occupations and helpful associations, we, whose names are signed hereto, with a view to rendering such care and assistance, do hereby assosuch care and assistance, do neredy asso-ciate ourselves together in the capacity of an organization and as hereinafter sel forth and adopt the following constitution.

The object of the organization is set forth in the following words:

The object of the league shall be to become acquainted, as far as practicable, with the history of every child entering the school; also with his record while there; to learn in advance the time at which he will be discharged, and, if possible, either in his former home or elsewhere, to provide lor him suitable occupation with such wholesome encouragements and restraints as shall tend to eliminate the evil and develop the best traits of character. The league will also use its influence to secure the commitment of children who ought to be in the school, and to prevent unjust commitments.

Tam very glad to note the inaugura tion of this movement, and it is desired that branch leagues be established throughout the State, and surely no more philanthropic work awaits our coöperation.

There is one thing about a circus that the Saunterer delights in, and that is the happy faces of the boys and giris who come and go upon our streets, faces all turned toward the great white tents. Life is a gala day for them then, and even the children of poverty who have been able to gather together the nickels necessary to admit them, view life, for a few hours at least, without a shadow on their hearts. What a hero is the clown to them; what wonders are the gymnasts and contortionists, and what a happy lot they deem it must be to ride those gaily caparisoned horses: what a happy lot they deem it must be to ride those gaily caparisoned horses; and the animals! The world seems to grow in bigness as they look at them, and they begin to question of the far off lands from which they came and think they should be as proud as a king if they could only ride the elephant, or be a lion tamer and go into his cage. Oh, those visions of boyhood, how little it takes to fill the eye of childhood, and wipe out all earth's cares. wipe out all earth's cares.

One of the noblest organizations in Los Angeles is that of the Gospel Union. It is the good Samaritan to the poor, the hopeless and despairing, and it is the embodiment of practical Christianity. Between one and two hundred hungry people are fed at those tables every Sunday morning. Many have been clothed, many have been given work, and hundreds of hearts have been cheered by human sympathy. Applied Christianity is what the world needs, and the more it gets of it the better. Men generally have faith in that religion that opens the pocketbook and loosens the purse strings. It is a religion that can de trusted, for it is without sham or presents. ut sham or pretense.

THE EAST SIDE.

Serious Accident to a Young Girl — The Plata Fina Club. A serious accident befell a twelve-year-old daughter of C.E. Petter on Friday. The girl, Bertha, in company with other children, was playing on haystack near her father's residence on Baldwin street, when in some way she slipped and slid head-foremost down the slippery side of the stack to the ground. Both her arms were broken at the wrists, and Dr. Shoemaker, who attended her, says the breaks are quite serious. Anesthetics were necessary in order to perform the required opera-tions, but the fractures were finally re-duced and the patient is now resting duced and the patient is now resting comparatively easy.

The Plata Fina Club, which won the prize of a large national flag at the late fair given by the ladies of the Sacred Heart Church, have donated the same to the sisters in charge of the Corphans' Home to be again used as a prize at another fair soon to take place at Armory Hall over in the city.

There was a joilty gathering at Ban-at Armory Gall over in the city.

There was a jolly gathering at Banquet Hall last night, it being the time of the sometime-promised dance given by the local A.O.U.W. These affairs are becoming very popular and will probably be kept up at intervals of perhaps a month during the winter.

Tonight begins the second week of the meetings being held at the Christian Church on Workman street. The success so far is quite encouraging. Rev. cause of ar is quite encouraging, Rev. Garvin being a fluent and entertaining speaker and well liked by both young and old. The meetings will probably last six weeks, or perhaps longer.

Health Officer MacGowan has just issued his monthly statement of vital statistics for September. The total number of deaths from all causes was 50, an annual rate per 1000 of 9.23. Of this number seven were from con-sumption, three were from accident and violence, and one was a suicide. There were seventy-nine births, of which thirty-eight were male and forty females.

Another Whittier Escape Captured. Deputy Sheriff Minick of Tropics yesterday arrested George Schlagle, 17 years old, an escape from the Whittier Reform, school, near that place, and landed him in jail. Schlagle said he had just arrived from Bakersfield. He was sent to Whittier for horse-stealing from Los Angeles.

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

Gracious words and full of tenderness are these. "Peace!" is there anything sweeter, anything that is more suggest-ive of completeness in life, of a soul in harmony with its infinite surroundings; of the fullness of God's love and mercyf Life has its turmoils and its cares, its burdens and its sorrows, but still the soul which possesses this legacy which Christ left for the inheritance of all His children may be at peace.

Are our souls at rest in Him, and do we enjoy this "peace" which He has promised? If we do not whose fault is it? It cannot be the Master's, for Christ makes no pledges which He does not redeem. Yet there must be fault somewhere, something which bars the doors of our hearts against this "peace." What does that imply!

What but the eternal fullness of divine peace, such as envelopes the Infinite? If we have the peace of God abiding in us it will be our enveloping atmosphere, and in its transparent brightness the face of God will never be hidden.

In Bunyan's beautiful allegory of Pilgrim's Progress we read of Christian going out of the way down an enticing by-path until he was taken and held as a prisoner in the Doubting Castle. Our hearts have been stirred with sympathy for him as he lay in his dungeon guarded by the grim giant Despair. But are we strangers to Doubting Castle? Do not sometimes its dread walls rise between us and that "peace" which is our rightful heritage! Then we doubt our acceptance with God, and we worry over our mistakes and failures, and let all life's burdens lie heavily upon us, even while Christ says to us, "Peace I have with you; my peace I give you, not as the world giveth give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." It is with us that the trouble lies when we do not have this "peace that passeth understanding." Perhaps there is some duty unfulfilled, some unwillingness on our part to do all that God requires of us. Perhaps we give only half-hearted service to God, and want our share of earthly pleasures, trying at the same time to serve God and mammon, forgetting that "no man can serve two masters," and that what God asks is our whole hearts, in the giving of which we find joy in obedience, pleasure in service and peace in trusting love.

Entire consecration is one of the greatest needs of Christian life. "Lord what will thou have me to do?" should be asked with every morning's sunrise, and when the answer comes, as come it surely will when we sincerely desire to know the work we have to do, then there must have been simply and the proper of In Bunyan's beautiful allegory of Pilgrim's Progress we read of Chris-come it surely will when we sincerely desire to know the work we have to do, then there must be no halting on our part, but we must work while the day lasts, and give willing, whole-hearted service.

This "peace" comes when we are working and striving, and setting God's will above our own wills. Then it is that faith lifts us as on eagle's wings, and how differently do earth's trials and cares appear to us when we can look down on them from the great height of an entire consecration. Here we never trouble ourselves about the height of an entire consecration. Here we never trouble, ourselves about the gratification of our own desires; never worry about the fulfillment of our own hopes and purposes, but althe language of our souls is "let God's will be done." And do you not see how peace may be ours when we make this entire surrender of ourselves to the Master; how we may "mount up as on earle's wings, and der of ourselves to the Master; how we may "mount up as on eagle's wings; and run and not be weary, and walk and not faint?" But, as has been very truly said: "One of our wings, namely the wing of trust, is entirely disabled by the slightest doubt;" and just as it requires two yings to lift a bird in the air, so does it require two wings to lift the soul. A great many people do everything but trust. They spread the wing of surrender, and use it vigorously, and wonder why it is that they do not mount up, never dreaming that it is because all the while the wing of trust is hanging idle by their sides. It is because Christians use one wing only that their efforts to fly are often so irregular their efforts to fly are often so irregular and fruitless. Both wings must be used or no flying is possible."

And is it here that we are at fault,

And is it here that we are at fault, those of us who are without peace? Is the wing of trust crippled, or is that of surrender hanging idle? Do we never spread them both and mount upward above the storm and cloud where peace abides? "My peace I give you"; are we ready to accept it and to abide in it? Let us beware that we do not lock any hidden corner of our hearts against duty, but open wide every chamber and luty, but open wide every chamber and enter. Christian liberty is found in Christian service, and when we meet God's measureless devotion to us by the complete surrender of our-selves to Him and an abiding faith in His promises, then shall we enter into that heritage of peace which Christ that heritage of peace whi gives to those who love Him.

"The lark soars singing from its nest And tells aloud, His trust in God, and so is blest Let come what cloud.

"He has no store, he sows no seed, Yet sings aloud and doth not heed, Through cloudy day or scanty feed, He sings to shame Men who forget in fear of need A Father's name.

"The heart that trusts forever sings, And feels as light as it had wings; A well of peace within it springs, Come good or ill, What'er today or morrow brings It is His will."

A snake not often heard of, at least in America, is the liver-colored snake in America, is the liver-colored snake with two heads, or perhaps they should be called mouths, though it does not have two mouths at the same time. They are reversible mouths, accupying the opposite end every six months. It the opposite end every six months. I lies with the two ends crossed on each other, as with folded hands. Every six other, as with folded hands. Every six months the change of the seasons reverses the functions of the two ends, the head becoming the tail and the tail becoming the head. The mouth at one end heals, or closes up all but a small opening, while the opposite end becomes the mouth for the next six months.

A friend of mine in India who told me A friend of mine in India who told me about this remarkable snake said he refused for a long time to believe that the functions of the two ends were reversed every six months, but one day he found one of these snakes in the jungle and carried it home, where he had a physician examine it. The result was the physician confirmed the stories of the creature and my friend was skeptical no longer. I learned no other name for this singular reptile than that of the "liver-colored snake."

Clothing, Hats, Shoes and Furnishing Goods

Fresh from the world's fashion centers. Our many different departments are so stocked as to excite the admiration of all who pay us a visit, and our prices place the rich result of untiring energy, forethought, pluck; push and nerve, backed up by abundant capital, within easy reach of economical people, matters not how limited their means; and it's our proud boast that we have ridden rough-shod over the grasping greed of our I00 per cent. competitors who believe in doing a small business on an exorbitant margin of profit.

-Every department in our mammoth stores will contribute its quoto of extraordinary bargains to make our Fall Opening Week memorable in the minds of the people as making a new era in the purchasing power of money. We shall, for our future success, strictly adhere to the following rules, which will always govern our house:

. To buy all our goods direct from first hands for cash, thus obtaining all the advantage that ample capital, intelligently applied, can secure. 2. To have strictly one price, and that the lowest which such goods can be bought for at any house in America. have all goods marked in plain figures so that the child that can barely make known its wan s, will lare as well as the most experienced buyer.

4. To promptly exchange goods when selections fail to please, and to as promptly refund the purchase money when the patron so elects. To see that our salesmen are faithful to our patrons' interest and refrain from all misrepresentaions according to our teaching.

To keep pace with the times, kinds, qualities and styles, and to merit the people's patronage and be just to all, even at the expense of liberality.

These are our own peculiar methods. They have marshaled the few friends of earlier years into the swelling army of today, and we propose to fight it out on those lines.

If this plan is once established in childhood, the girl will grow to womanhood with a clear knowledge of where her money goes and what she has to show for it.

A Wonderful Increase.

The trade in our line of home-made candies has increased within the last two or three weeks so greatly that we are compelled to enlarge and pat another candy maker to work. We make a line of nut candies, taffies, etc., which we sell at 25 cents per pound, which have become very popular, and we are selling large quantities of them. We are going to introduce a new line of butter cups, peanut brittle. New England peanut, honeycomb, honey taffy, etc., that will be entirely new here, and from which we expect large sales. Keep your eye, on us, as we are going to lead in the candy business this season. T. A. Gardner, manager. "The Keystone," IPN. Spring street.

The current week will be, theatric will witness the reopening of one of our playhouses after undergoing a thorough furbishing up, and will also be the occasion of the first appearanceon our stage of America's most famous opera comique star.

Beginning tomorrow night the Los Angeles Theater, which has been changed and improved in many important particulars—cleaned, repainted, redecorated and recarpeted—will witness the advent of that sterling star, Jeffreys Lewis, supported by the capable company from Stockwell's San Francisco theater, giving four performances. On Monday night Merivale Grove's brilliant society drama, Forget Me Not, will be the attraction, in which we are assured that Miss Lewis is the same clever and powerful actress as ever. In the character of "Stephanie de Mohrivart" in Forget Me Not she is declared to be as fascinating as when she first attempted this difficult role, playing with a force and fire that stamps her as one of the greatest artists in the part ever assaying its presentation.

The supporting company is pronounced unusually capable, including a number of San Francisco favorites, among whom are Harry Mainhall and Ethel Brandon, who have been attracting much attention for the way in which they have portrayed their respective parts.

The complete repertoire is as follows: Monday night and Wednesday matinée, Forget Me Not; Tuesday night, Clothilde; Wednesday night, La Belle Russe.

A more exquisite comic opera than La Cigale has not been seen for many years, The work contains everything calculated to attract lovers of comic opera and surely the oldest play-goers can remember nothing pretiter or more perfect of its kind, from the singing and acting of the prima donna to the dresses, dancing and singing. It is not an average comic opera: it is a dainty and delicate work of art abounding in faunful humor, contrasted with a pleasant dash of sentiment, just enough to show the delighted spectator how the real and ideal may be blended to the advantage of both. Thus the eye, the ear, the fancy and the imagination are alike charmed and satisfied. Weariness is impossible during the representation, and for those who are jaded with the worries of life, who are sick in heart, body or brain, we can offer no better prescription than a visit to La Cigale. No comic opera for many years has won so complete and well deserved a success on the first night. ing very handsome things are said:

There has not in the past decade such a series of successes attended any actor on the American stage as have fallen to the lot of Dan'l Sully. Eight years ago he was struggling with the ups and downs of fate as a variety actor. Then he took that pretty little story "The Chimney Corner" and made out of it The Corner Grocery, better than this The Corner Grocery made bim, for with it came wealth. This success inspired Mr. Sully to seek the legitimate boards and he produced Duddy Nolan: that, too, made him money, but the most marked success is his latest effort, The Millionaire.

The emphatic hit that was scored by The Stoneaway last season insures it a cordial greeting when it reappears at the Los Angeles Theater Thursday and Friday. October 6 and 7. It returns this year with more elaborate scenery and a much stronger cast than was sene rere previously. The play, as local theater-goers are well aware, is replete with stirring situations, startling climaxes, and through it there ripples a vein of refined comedy. Columbia Theater, Boston, has made a big hit. A peculiarly novel bit of real-ism is the papering of a room in full sight of the audience in an incredibly short space of time. The transforma-tion of an apartment in the hands of workmen into a completely furnished room, is not only an original idea, but is said to be extremely amusing and inter-esting.

The manager of the Lessing Theater in Berlin has just had a great chance and has deliberately thrown it away. A schoolmaster has sent him an original drama in six acts, purely original. The title of the schoolmaster's play—incontestably up to date and treating of what, in Germany, is the subject of the moment—is Die Cholera. Herr Blumenthal thanked him but declined. There might have been some excellent germs in this play, but what a pestiferous title!

Good Old Fimes.

[American Cultivator.]

It is well, as an old deacon used to say, to "count up our blessings" occasionally, and this is the way the American Economist compares the present condition of the farmer with the "good old times."

Despite all the talk about the hardships of the farmer, he is a king compared to his father or grandfather.

If he doubts, let him hunt up the old gentleman's day book of forty years ago and note the prices then.

A bushel of corn would buy 7½ pounds of sugar; today it will buy 12½ pounds of sugar; today it will buy 12½ pounds of sugar; today it will buy 12½ pounds.

Ten pounds of butter bought 33½ yards of cotton cloth and 22 pounds of sugar and bound it by hand.

Ten pounds of corn would buy 7½ pounds.

Ten pounds of cotheese were worth 25 pounds of cotheese were worth 25 pounds of nails; the cheese now pay for 54 pounds of nails; the
